The Integrity Group is a consulting firm of lawyers specializing in the prevention and resolution of workplace conflict such as sexual and other harassment and discrimination, bullying, and other workplace misconduct including violence.

We attribute our success in large measure to the dynamic team of educators and legally-trained professionals that make up The Integrity Group and who are experienced in all facets of workplace conflict resolution, human rights issues, and labour relations.

We work closely with our clients to address each and every challenge they bring to us or which we discover through dialogue and consultation. We minimize our client's legal exposure and help create work environments that are healthy and productive.

We achieve these goals through customized programs that are tailored to meet our client's particular needs and concerns.
